

GOVERNOR BLEASE DECLARED WINNER

Primary Irregularities Found,
But Not Enough to Change Result.

Columbia, S. C., October 1.—Governor Cole L. Blease, was today declared the Democratic nominee for Governor by the State Executive Committee. This action was taken after a subcommittee had reported that its investigation of the recent primary had disclosed irregularities in voting, but not sufficient to alter the result. On the face of the returns of the recent primary, Governor Blease defeated Judge Ira B. Jones in the gubernatorial race by about 3,000 votes.

When the report of the subcommittee was submitted to the Executive Committee, attorneys representing Judge Jones withdrew his protest against the balloting in the primary. A second primary was ordered by the committee to determine the Democratic nominee for Governor. The committee for Attorney-General, the nominee for Attorney-General, the two candidates who polled the highest vote, on August 27.

All other nominees on the face of the returns were declared elected by the committee. The protests brought against United States Senator B. R. Tillman by J. W. Talbert and N. R. Tillman, were dismissed. The contestants failed to appear. Senator Tillman will be re-elected by the Legislature at its next session in January, 1912.

The matter of primary reform was left in the hands of the committee of six appointed by the State convention last May. Before adjournment the committee urged that all violations of the primary law be rigidly prosecuted by the solicitor.

ENGINE LEAVES TRACK

N. Y. & P. Passenger Train Delayed by Accident in Byrd Street Yard.

Two passenger trains of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad were delayed last night when a switching engine left the rails in the freight yard at Seventh and Byrd Streets, obstructing the main line. The engine is supposed to have split a switch, which caused it to jump the track and roll twenty feet before it stopped.

Train No. 35, which was due here at 4:30, was delayed fifteen minutes. Train No. 36, due to leave at 8:20, was delayed one hour.

The derailed engine was finally placed upon the tracks and traffic resumed. No one was hurt by the accident and practically little damage was done.

Caused by Miss Helen Gould.

Norfolk, Va., October 1.—Announcement was made today of a gift of $10,000 by Miss Helen Gould toward a fund of $100,000 for a Y. M. C. A. in Portsmouth.

PLACED ON TRIAL FOR DYNAMITING

"J. W. McGraw" on the Pacific Coast, a confessed dynamiter and accomplice of the McNamara brothers, who has been kept in custody as a witness for the prosecution ever since his arrest in Detroit a year ago last April.

Herbert S. Hokin, successor of John J. McNamara as secretary-treasurer of the union, whom McManigal accuses of being the organizer of the "dynamiting crew," and one of the originators of the alarm clock scheme by which explosives were set off several hours after the mine was placed.

Most of the other defendants are present of former officials whom the government charges were linked together in a conspiracy by an extensive correspondence from 1905 to 1911, during which time more than 100 explosions in States scattered from Massachusetts to California occurred in works under construction by employers of nonunion labor.

Fifty-four indicted.

Fifty-four men were indicted last February, but John J. McGraw, of Wheeling, W. Va., never has been located and the McNamara brothers are in prison.

The courtroom, which probably for weeks will be the scene of the trial, has long been ready. Every precaution has been taken to secure quiet. The windows of the small room, located on an outside corner of the second floor of the Federal building, have been heavily curtained to exclude the daylight. Recently, Judge Anderson had the walls and ceiling thickly padded with felt to improve the sound conditions.

United States Senator John W. Kern has been retained as counsel for the defendants, while the government is represented by District Attorney Charles W. Miller and his assistant.

Sixteen defendants were placed under $10,000 bonds each, to appear for trial, and the other 38 under $5,000 bonds, making an aggregate in bonds of $240,000.

Witnesses are to be called from many parts of the country. While it is not the intention of the government to go thoroughly into the cases which resulted in the imprisonment of the McNamara, all that part of the evidence of the Pacific Coast explosions as pertains to the illegal interstate shipment of explosives has been made available to District Attorney Miller.

Each of the thirty-two indictments returned last February contains charges against all of the defendants, and the charges are embraced in three groups. They are:

Transporting dynamite and nitroglycerin to another, as Orville E. McManigal confessed was done when these explosives were carried in suitcases from hiding places at Munice, Ind.; Rochester, Pa.; Tiffin, Ohio, and Indianapolis to cities where "jobs" were to be blown up.

Conspiring to violate interstate regulations relative to explosives, the conspiracy or abetting the illegal transportation of explosives.

Most of the explosions of which the government has made a record were directed against members of the National Erectors' Association, an organization of constructors who had broken off relations with the union and were conducting "open shops."

The first explosion or attempt recorded was at Miller's Falls, Mass., in the summer of 1905, and the last October 16, 1911, when at 2 A. M. near Santa Barbara, Cal., thirty-nine sticks of dynamite with a fuse were found beneath a bridge just before a special train bearing President Taft passed over. Twenty minutes after the explosion occurred in Ohio.

Confession Is Basis.

McManigal's confession was the basis upon which the government founded its case before the Federal grand jury which returned the indictments. And it is expected to figure prominently in the present trial. In it McManigal confessed:

That Hokin came to him in Detroit in 1907 and induced him to blow up a "job" there, afterward paying him a regular fee of $125 for each job. McManigal had worked in a stone quarry, and he said, it was because of his familiarity with explosives that he was selected.

That Hokin accompanied him on trips and pointed out works to be blown up, and introduced him to James B. McNamara, who became McManigal's "team-mate" in the dynamiting business.

That on instructions from Hokin he met Michael J. Young, a member of the executive board in Boston, and Frank O. Webb, in New York, about jobs that were to be blown up near those cities.

That Hokin wired him at Chicago to return to Indianapolis in February, 1910, where he, Hokin and J. J. McNamara talked over a "new invention," which consisted of using an ordinary alarm clock as a timer for fuses. "It was a scheme by which we could set a bomb and then be miles away when the explosion occurred, and so prove an alibi," said McManigal.

McManigal also confessed that explosives were hidden in various parts of the country and carried in suitcases on passenger trains; that he met various business agents about jobs, and that he received a fee of from $125 to $250 for each "job."

The Defendants.

Following is the government's list of the defendants in the dynamite cases:

morning for twenty minutes before his plight was discovered. At Hickory half a hundred students from Lenora College gave the college cheer with "Wilson, Wilson," on the end.

"That's a fine cry to keep up the spirits of the side that ought to lose," Colonel Roosevelt shouted. The cheerers did not know that the president of those who wished to hear the Colonel. A man pushed his way into the midst of the students announcing: "I'm a Republican, but I want a square deal for Roosevelt. You college boys have got to keep still."

"Boys," Colonel Roosevelt called out, "you are on no noise. You're just a little short on intelligence."

The students persisted in their cheering until Colonel Roosevelt's champion minutes, when he stood and attempted to force him out of the crowd. The student retaliated by aiming a blow at his face. Others joined in the attack, and the president of the crowd the "Taft Republican" and the students were still pummeling each other.

Colonel Roosevelt reached Asheville at 5:50 o'clock this morning, and his schedule called for his departure at 8:10. He did not know that at Asheville there was a change from central to eastern time, and, thinking he would be in Asheville for an hour and a half, he could not get to the train. Outside there was a crowd which the Colonel did not wish to disappoint. He arose hastily, slipped on a rug, and fell to the ground in a few seconds, and went out to the platform in time to wave a good-bye to the crowd. No one had seen the Colonel's hasty exit, the rest of the party were asleep in the nearest one and no one could be admitted to the car. The locked door as the train drew out Colonel Roosevelt rang the bell. The porter, mindful of his orders, let the bell ring and kept away from the door. Colonel Roosevelt kept on beating the bell for five minutes, then gave it up. At the next station, twenty minutes later, a trainman found him and went to his rescue.

Motor Trucks

Keeping the delivery promise Breaking the delivery promise

5 P. M., or 11 P. M.—Which?

Richmond folks appreciate having their goods delivered to their homes on time.

Some of them get their day's purchases anywhere from 9 P. M. to 11 P. M.—the result of tired horses; overworked men; too much territory to cover. It goes back for the most part to horse delivery.

Others get their purchases before dinner. The goods usually arrive by motor truck, driven by an alert enthusiastic young man—a good living testimonial to the progressiveness of a business house.

The reason these families get their goods on time is because the motor truck covers an area of territory five times that of the horse vehicle; goes over ground in one-third the time and finally because motor delivery is scientific delivery.

Alco motor trucks hold three non-stop records, which classify the Alco as America's greatest endurance motor vehicle. They deliver the goods safely; on time.

The business man who believes in service to his customers must be wise enough to look into the facts in the case of the Alco truck.

Following the confession which yesterday of the commission which assembled at the request of Governor Mann of Virginia and Governor Goldsborough of Maryland, consisting of officials and individuals connected with the oyster industries of the two States, for the purpose of protesting against the report of the chemistry bureau of the Agriculture Department that the sewage of Washington and Alexandria was polluting the waters of the Potomac, thereby contaminating the oysters in the river, Representative Thomas Parran, of Maryland, who was elected chairman of the commission, has today addressed to the governors of the two States a letter asking them to appoint a bacteriologist and a chemist for the purpose of making a new joint Federal and State survey and test of the suspected oysters.

Letter to the Governor.

Representative Parran has also sent this letter to the Secretary of Agriculture, asking the latter to order a new Federal survey and test. The letter is as follows:

"To the Governor of Virginia:

"Sir.—As chairman of the joint commission appointed by Governor Goldsborough of Maryland, and yourself, upon the question of the report made by the United States government on the contamination of the oysters in and pollution of the waters of the Potomac River, I am requested by resolution of said commission to request you to appoint a chemist and bacteriologist from the State of Virginia to serve in conjunction with four others of the same character of experts, two to be appointed by Governor Goldsborough, representing the State of Maryland, and two to be designated by the Bureau of Chemistry, Department of Agriculture, representing the United States government, to make an examination of and the oysters in the waters of the Potomac River.

"I will be pleased to have you notify me of the names of the chemist and bacteriologist from your State, when appointed, so that I may notify them when and where they are to meet to take up this work."

In Parran's District.

Representative Parran, in whose congressional district the Sixth, he most of the oyster waters situated in the Bureau of Chemistry report it was said at his office today, will endeavor to push the carrying out of the plan for a joint Federal and State investigation as rapidly as possible, so that the dredgers, transportation captains, dealers and the general oyster consuming public may have the benefit of the new report as early this fall as practicable. It is expected that the State of Maryland will provide the State oyster boat, Governor Philip F. Thomas, for the use of the Maryland, Virginia and Federal chemists and bacteriologists on the testing cruise in the lower river.

Some Men Represent Government.

At the Bureau of Chemistry this morning, Dr. Doolittle, the acting head of the bureau, said he expected to designate for the work on the part of the government the same chemist and bacteriologist who made the previous tests for the United States government, and whose report of contamination and pollution has created such a stir.

Dr. G. W. Stiles is the bacteriologist and W. W. Skinner is the water chemist who will again represent the Federal government.

"There was some talk at the conference yesterday," Dr. Doolittle said today, "of the Chemistry Bureau being asked by the Maryland and Virginia representatives to hold up the report we have made on oysters, but there seems to be a misunderstanding about this. While it is true that the report is still in the hands of the printers, its contents in fact were made public through the newspapers by the Secretary of Agriculture at the time he signed the report made by our bureau. ## GLOUCESTER FAIR COMES TO CLOSE

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

Gloucester, C. H. Va., October 1.—The second day of the Gloucester Fair was favored with fine weather and early in the day crowds began to gather.

A fine speech by Westmoreland Davis, a baseball game, field contests, the horse and colt show and a tournament filled the day with interest.

The fair closed with a tournament ball at Roaring Springs. The great success of the exhibition is largely due to the energy, ability and public spirit of L. C. Catlett who was heartily seconded by the Gloucester people. The fair was scarcely over before Mr. Catlett, with ceaseless energy, picked up the best of the exhibits and will leave with them on the morning steamer to place them in Richmond, for the State Fair.
